Dear Mr. President,

I'm writing to insist that strong legislation be passed into law requiring genetically engineered foods be labeled as such, whether it is a whole food or an ingredient in processed foods.

Genetically engineered foods open a whole series of questions that are so far unanswerable. I'm concerned with buying and consuming foods containing unknown toxins, having antibiotic resistance, have reduced nutritional value, increased pesticide possible allergic reactions, higher estrogen levels and irreversible mistakes.

Additionally, I question the movement of our country towards an increasingly centralized agribusiness sector. Pushing small, family owned farms out of business, as well as gaining control that seems to be unchecked is unacceptable. These huge agribusiness corporations are meddling in many other areas besides farming. Let's leave the farming to the people who know how to work the land!

Thanks and I hope to hear what legislation you intend to pass.

Leadership is indeed being redefined. A single leader ("the grand strategist") can't figure it all out anymore. The new leadership will come only from fully effective teamwork. Think back on times when you felt the most needed, the most wanted and the most motivated. More than likely, you were part of a great team that had the spirit of belonging.

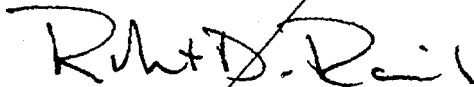

You'll feel that "spirit of belonging" again on November 17. The fourth annual "Worldwide Lessons in Leadership Series" has been developed by the world's best instructional designers to build leadership qualities in all people who attend — regardless of their organizational level. Participants will return with an emotional energy — and a powerful commitment. When whole teams attend, the energy and commitment can be truly transforming.

And transform we must! Given the incredible political and economic upheavals we witness daily and the accelerated rate of change we're seeing as we near the year 2000, we are challenging the "best of the best" to show us how to keep pace. We want to forget our tired old ideas on leadership — and learn new ones. We want to know how to create a workplace with stronger, more results-oriented teamwork, greater ingenuity, more positive, constructive attitudes, superior communications skills, and a true understanding of what it takes to succeed.

The new workplace is coming our way, and it's coming fast! November 17 will give you an event that will help teams and entire organizations find the hidden leadership qualities in everyone. Whether the market is up or down and whether you're Y2K-ready or not, your team will see how to meet the daily challenges head on. In short, you and your teams will learn that changes in the economy, days filled with non-stop crises, brutal competition, tight budgets, and other demands, can't beat teams that won't be beaten! No greater, more secure, feeling is possible.

Connecting all the fast-paced and productive events on November 17 will be our moderator, Emmy award-winning journalist and best-selling author Linda Ellerbee. She will be joined by Sharon Patrick, president and COO of Martha Stewart Living Omnimedia, to get the day off to an exciting start. We hope to see you there!

Sincerely,

Dr. Robert Reid, Dean

P.S. We're so certain you will find this program of value that we're offering a money-back guarantee. You can call 1-800-689-9771 or register on-line at <http://www.lessonsinleadership.com>. Register your team now, before a sell out, and you will experience it all for $199 (only $149 per person with group discounts) — and get a free hardcover book, Lessons in Leadership from the Ground Up: Turning Dreams Into Success ($19.95 retail value).

P.P.S. You now know the date of the program, who's presenting, what it's about, that it's designed for all team members from all levels, and what it costs. What you don't know is what it might cost not to attend — and that could be a great deal more!
